FOREWARD

China is a country with a long history. The forefathers of the Chinese people, through ages of hard work, created a splendid civilization and left behind a rich store of ancient relics. Since the founding of The People's Republic of China, archaeological work, guided by Chairman Mao's policy of "making the past serve the present," has made marked progress. Surveys and excavations have been carried out at many important sites and ancient tombs in various parts of the country, bringing to light enormous quantities of cultural relics, the preservation of which has been given close and close attention.

The specimens shown in the Exhibition of Archaeological Finds of The People's Republic of China represent only part of those discovered since 1949 and include some of the latest finds during the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution. Ranging from the fossil skull of the Lantian Man who lived some 600,000 years ago to 14th-14th-century relics of the Yuan dynasty, they indicate the general development of history and culture in ancient China. We hope that the Exhibition will contribute to the promotion of understanding and friendship between the people of China and other countries.

PRIMITIVE SOCIETY

About 4,000-600,000 years ago

As a result of continued discoveries of human fossils and cultural relics since the founding of The People's Republic of China in 1949, it is now possible to link various important stages of human evolution.

China has fossils of Yuanmou Man from one million years ago, of Lantian Man who lived lived some 600,000 years in the past, and of Peking Man from 400,000 to 500,000 years ago. All three retained certain primitive physical features.

About 6,000 to 7,000 years ago many tribes were scattered over the vast expanse of China, leaving rich cultural relics to posterity. Distributed along the Yellow River are remains of the Yangshao and Kansu Yangshao cultures.

Some 4,000 to 5,000 years ago the Lungsha Lungshan culture developed along the Yellow River and the Chinglien kang culture on the Yangtze.

Bronze Figurines, Chariots and Horses from an Eastern Han Tomb in Wuwei, Kansu Province
(2nd century AD)

A large Eastern Han tomb was discovered in 1969. It contained over 220 artifacts and 30,000 copper coins.

Like the galloping horse in the preceding room, this cortege of warriors, chariots and horses are spirited, vigorous and beautiful. They vividly depict the pomp and splendor of the procession of the feudal nobles.
